"FISHED OUT"

Mr. B. C. Cole holds most of the table size fish that was in his three acre pond. The Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries conducted a demonstration in cooperation with the Soil Conservation Service to restock the pond. Existing fish were destroyed with chemicals to protect the "small fry" to be restocked and to insure a balance of sunfish and bass. The small number of table size fish and scores of small sunfish proved that pond was "out of balance." Over-population of sunfish is a common problem in local ponds.

Most ponds needing restocking can be drained to remove existing fish. Restocking by the Bureau of Sport Fisheries will not be provided unless there is proof the pond was drained or treated to destroy existing population.

Fish orders for delivery in 1973 must be submitted before July 1. Largemouth bass, bluegill, redear, sunfish, and channel catfish are available. The Soil Conservation Service can give assistance in pond examination and pond stocking or restocking. Also, Farmers Bullent in 2250, warm-water Fishponds which contains details on fish pond management, is available at the SCS office.
